CAUSES OF SLEEP EXPLAINED

Frenchman Says It Is Inherited Instinct to Protect Organism From Effects of Fatigue.

At the National Museum for Natural History in Paris M. R. Legendre lately delivered an extremely interesting lecture on "The Physiology of Sleep," which summarizes the latest researches on the subject. He admitted at the outset that it was impossible to give an exact definition of sleep, which was to be distinguished from narcosis, hypnosis and lethargy, and devoted himself chiefly to investigating the cause of sleep, of which many explanations have been suggested. He showed by fairly conclusive arguments that this could be neither brain pallor, nor intoxication by carbonic acid, nor the presence of narcotic substances in the blood, theories which have had in their turn greater or less success; and finally avowed his preference for the view of Prof. Claparede of Geneva that sleep is not the result of fatigue but an inherited instinct designed to protect the organism against the ill effects of fatigue. He pointed out, however, that an injection of the cerebro-spinal (cephalo-rachidian) fluid from an animal suffering from insomnia would produce the same malady in one otherwise healthy; and that experiments were now being made to determine the toxic substance present in the fluid in question. Some of these experiments seem to show that the effect of sleep is limited to the brain and nerves.—The Athenaeum.

LESSON IN HARMONY SCORED

Little Girl, After Lecture on Color Combinations, Discovers Real Symphony in Black.

A woman who prides herself on her instinct for producing effective and harmonious combinations of color was called upon to admire a doll's toilet which her small daughter had just completed. Dolly's outfit comprised all the primary colors. There were no softening mezzotints to rest the tired eye as it roved from red to orange, and then wandered on blinking to be confronted by purple and green. It was hard for the aesthetic parent to believe any child of hers had such crude ideas as to what constituted decorative effect, but there was the doll in all its luridness to prove the sad fact. Thereupon mother proceeded to talk long and earnestly (in words of one syllable) on harmony in general and harmonious color combinations in particular.

That the seed did not fall on barren soil was proved an hour later when the latest recruit to art called out: "Oh, mother, do come to the window and see this boy. He is a black boy, mother, and he's riding a black horse. That shows that he has good taste, doesn't it, to pick out a horse of the same color?"

WATER LILY FARM.

One of the beauty spots in Washington is the water lily farm conducted by a woman who as a clerk in the treasury department lost her health. Starting as an amateur cultivator, she has become one of the most prosperous producers of the flowers. She purchased a few acres on the Potomac and caused an artificial lake to be made on her land by piping in the water. She became fascinated with the work, and willingly gave up her government position so she could devote her attention to the flowers. Now she has ponds which cover five acres, in which she is raising the flowers, and many persons go to her garden at early hours of the morning to see the lilies in full bloom.

WHEN SCHUMANN WAS SORE.

An amusing story of Schumann is told by a Vienna critic. The composer once accompanied his wife, who was even then a celebrated pianist, to the palace, when she went to play before the king of Holland, and was gratified by the monarch's compliments of her performance. The composer was somewhat surprised, however, when the king turned to him and courteously inquired: "Are you also musical?" They say Schumann was so indignant that he didn't speak for an hour.

MAKES THE DIAGNOSIS EASY.

"Doctor, I suffer dreadfully from rheumatism in my knee."

"Well, there's some satisfaction in that."

"Yes; it shows, you know, that it's a real case of rheumatism."

GHOSTLY EXPLANATION.

Canterbury (Eng.) cathedral can boast of a real ghost—that of Becket, the murdered archbishop—who can clearly be seen from time to time in the crypt. This ghost has actually been photographed. A curious point is that, while one photograph shows a palpable figure of a prelate against a pillar, another photograph taken from the same spot, but on a different day, shows no such appearance. A probable explanation is that a fresco was formerly painted on the pillar, and subsequently painted out. Consequently when the weather is damp the figure becomes visible through the overlaid material, but on a dry day entirely disappears, or, in ghost language, vanishes.

GUM COLLARS.

Ham Wilson purchased four gum collars at a auction sale at the Co. seat last Wednesday for 25 cts. This is the first time we ever seen a gum collar. Ham says they beat paper collars all hollow, because they last longer and you don't have to wash them more than once a month and then you can do it with a damp rag. It's a great wonder to us that Hen Weatherby, prop. of our general store, don't keep these gum collars for the human neck.—Bingville Bugle.
